- Prime rib roast: Bone-in (ask your butcher to remove and reattach the bones with twine for easy carving).
- Seasoning: Kosher salt, freshly ground black pepper, and softened butter or oil rubbed with herbs (like rosemary or thyme).
- Dry brine (optional, recommended): Salt the roast 12 to 24 hours in advance and leave it uncovered on a rack in the refrigerator.
- Room temperature: Take the roast out of the fridge 2 to 3 hours before cooking

Step-by-Step Cooking Instructions (Traditional Method)
1. Preheat the oven: Set your oven to 500°F (260°C).
2. Sear the outside: Roast the beef fat-side up in a shallow roasting pan for 15 minutes at 500°F to build a crisp crust.
3. Lower the temperature: Turn the oven down to 325°F (163°C) (do not open the oven door while it adjusts).
4. Roast by weight: Cook for roughly 10 to 12 minutes per pound for rare, or 13 to 15 minutes per pound for medium-rare.
5. Check the temperature: Use a reliable meat thermometer inserted into the thickest part of the meat:
    - Rare: Pull at 115°F–120°F (target ~125°F after resting)
    - Medium-Rare: Pull at 125°F–130°F (target ~135°F after resting)
    - Medium: Pull at 135°F–140°F
6. Rest the meat: Remove the roast from the oven, tent it loosely with aluminum foil, and let it rest for 20 to 30 minutes before slicing. The internal temperature will rise 5°F to 10°F during this time
